AUSTIN COMMUNITY FOUNDATION TO ENSURE THAT A DONOR'S WISHES COME TRUE

Georgia B. Lucas was the daughter of George and Addie Lucas. She was born in the historic Warner-Lucas House located at 303 Academy Drive. As a girl, Miss Lucas spent much of her summer at the family's summer cottage on property high on the hills north of Mt. Bonnell, where there was always a breeze. Here on the property they named "Bright Leaf" they were able to escape the sultry summer heat. Over the years, Miss Lucas added to Bright Leaf, and by the time she passed away in 1994, Bright Leaf had grown to 216 acres. In her later years, Miss Lucas spent most of her afternoons strolling the grounds of Bright Leaf, listening to birds sing and taking in the beauty of nature.

In Miss Lucas' will, she bequeathed Bright Leaf to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department to serve as a nature preserve and park, and she gave the rest of her estate to the Austin Community Foundation to establish the Georgia B. Lucas Foundation Fund of the Austin Community Foundation. Her bequest was left as a permanent endowment to the Foundation.

The Georgia B. Lucas Foundation Fund's purpose is to two-fold: she designated a portion of the Fund's income to provide grants on an annual basis to St. David's Episcopal Church, The University of Texas at Austin for scholarships, St. David's Healthcare System, Salvation Army, Capitol Area Council of Boy Scouts of America, and the Lone Star Girl Scout Council; the balance of the income to be distributed to provide funding in the Central Texas area for a variety of issues, including the arts, historic preservation, community services, youth services, and animal care. The grants are determined through recommendations by an advisory committee of six people named in the will Miss Lucas.

The Georgia B. Lucas Foundation Fund has awarded over 300 grants totaling over $5.1 million dollars since 1995.

Due to decreased funding and ability to support Bright Leaf, in August 2005, the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission voted to move forward on transferring Bright Leaf to Charitable Holdings, the non-profit affiliate of the Austin Community Foundation which accepts real property gifts. Miss Lucas had provided that in the event the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department was unable or no longer interested in owning Bright Leaf, then it was to go to the Austin Community Foundation.

On September 1, 2006, the transfer was completed and Bright Leaf was deeded to Charitable Holdings. ACF will manage Bright Leaf for Charitable Holdings. ACF is committed to ensuring Miss Lucas's wishes in her will for Bright Leaf becoming a true community treasure are realized.

A WIN-WIN PARTNERSHIP WORKS TO GROW ACF CORPORATE GIVING

While most Austin Community Foundation funds have come from individuals and families, nationally the corporate sector is an increasingly rich source for community giving. So this year ACF began a new initiative to encourage local companies to establish ACF donor-advised funds for charitable giving. Partnering with ACF on this effort is Jenkens & Gilchrist, the law firm at which ACF Governor Mike Cook is a shareholder.

To date, Austin Community Foundation has 16 company philanthropic giving funds, which over time have disbursed $2.6 million to community efforts. Together the 16 funds currently have assets of about $525,000. By contrast, the Silicon Valley Community Foundation has 25 corporate funds, with current assets totaling $54 million. So we have lots of potential to grow far deeper resources for company philanthropic giving at ACF.

Jenkins initiated the partnership with ACF. The firm wanted to get more meaningfully involved in the community by building a relationship with one nonprofit partner; after reviewing many alternatives, the firm selected Austin Community Foundation. It retained CauseCatalyst to create a new program designed to meet the goals of both the firm and the foundation.

Seeing the potential for ACF to attract significant new money from the business community, Jenkins offered to sponsor an outreach program to area companies. The first step was to design a strong model that companies could follow in establishing a fund. After researching programs at LCRA and Grande Communications, Jenkins created a set of guidelines based on their successful giving funds. Features include voluntary employee contributions made through payroll deductions; matching funds provided by the firm/company; employee control over grant awards and recipients; and guaranteed contributions to nonprofits for which employees volunteer.

Jenkins made itself the “guinea pig” — it has used the new model to establish its own fund, the Jenkins Employees Charitable Fund. While the fund is brand-new, it has already made its first grants, selected by employees, to Austin Groups for the Elderly, Big Brothers Big Sisters, and Meals on Wheels. Cook reports, “Our attorneys and staff have been enthusiastic about our fund and it’s great to see them working together on it.” The fund model is working well; Jenkins now is making it available to other companies interested in setting up an ACF company giving fund.

As compared against establishing an in-house corporate foundation, an ACF fund offers significant benefits. It requires far less staff time and overhead, because of all the support services that ACF provides. ACF handles fund administration, grants processing, and IRS reporting; it also assumes responsibility for liability, audits, and meeting governmental regulations. For donor-advised funds, there is no investment fee, so 100% of funds contributed go directly to nonprofits.

Jenkins also sponsored the creation, printing and mailing of a series of informational postcards, which have gone out to thousands of business executives and owners in Austin, inviting other companies to establish ACF funds. A third element of the program is the new ACF Corporate Circle. Regular mixer events provide ACF fund owners and business people with a great way to meet in person and develop a deeper sense of community around ACF. Speakers address topics related to business philanthropy. In July, Martha Smiley spoke about Grande Communications’ giving program. On October 11, Mark Seriff will talk about his experiences with the Seriff Foundation.

The Austin Business Journal ran an Aug. 11th story about ACF and the effort to attract more charitable giving funds from companies; the article is available at www.austin.bizjournals.com.

AUSTIN HIGH SCHOOL CELEBRATES 125 YEARS...

On October 21, 2006, Austin High School celebrated its 125th anniversary and kicked-off the Austin Alumni Association. Austin High School is one of the oldest public high schools west of the Mississippi River.

Austin High has prepared students to be educated, socially conscious citizens and leaders. Some of the current Austin High students are among the fourth, fifth and even sixth generations of their families to attend the school. The school is in the early stages of a Renaissance, with an endowment, the Stephen F. Austin Society supporting extracurricular excellence, a massive grounds renovation project, and new leadership.

This was a wonderful opportunity to renew old acquaintances, make new friends, and learn about what is going on at Austin High. Alumni, parents, teachers and friends of Austin High School were invited to join in the celebration.

At this event, the Austin High Alumni Association was launched. This association has been needed for so long and will allow 30,000 graduates to stay in touch with their friends and classmates and with AHS.

If you were unable to attend the 125th Anniversary Celebration you can still join the Austin High School Alumni Association. For more information and to join visit www.ahs125.com or www.loyalforever.com.

WHAT IS A COMMUNITY FOUNDATION?

A community foundation is a philanthropic vehicle that combines the charitable gifts of many to provide leadership and financial leverage in addressing the current and future needs of the community through various grant making activities designed to improve the lives of the citizens of that community.

The Austin Community Foundation supports a wide range of community needs in the areas of arts & culture, education, scholarships, health & social services. It can serve as a catalyst by supplying seed funding for new community programs and maximizing philanthropy through effective fund management and careful grant selection.

The Austin Community Foundation is responding for today, investing for tomorrow.
For Good. Forever.

To make a donation or learn more, visit our website at www.austincommunityfoundation.org or call 512.472.4483.
